

1,000 CSEA Members Picketing in Dutchess

By Jon Powers

POUGHKEEPSIE
A meeting was scheduled later today in hopes of ending a 13-month contract dispute that has seen an estimated 1,000 Dutchess County employees at picket lines at nine sites in Poughkeepsie and Beacon since Friday.

The strikers are members of the Dutchess County unit, Civil Service Employees Association.

"We'll stay out as long as it takes," said Dan Maserjian, a probation department employee. "The members are set up. If the county doesn't move, we don't move."

Employees first shouldered picket signs on Friday, after the Dutchess County Board of Representatives earlier rejected a tentative agreement reached by negotiating teams. Several sessions were held this past weekend, without substantial movement by either side.

The original three year contract approved by negotiation calls for an 8.5 percent salary increase retroactive to Jan. 1, when the old pact expired; an eight percent pay boost in Jan., 1976; and a cost of living increase (not less than six percent) in Jan., 1977. The Board of Representatives rejected that contract with some members claiming the monetary provisions were too generous.

Another meeting, between Dutchess County Executive William Bartles and CSEA organizer Lee Frank, was scheduled for later today. In the meantime, county employees continue their strike.

State

Workers

On the Job

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The head of the state's largest public employee union says the rejection of a strike by the membership has neither weakened the union's position with its members nor deterred it from a strong fight over its next contract.

The rank and file of the Civil Service Employees Association, representing 147,000 state workers, rejected their leaders' request for authorization to call a strike for 8 a.m. today.

"We've lost a battle but the war continues on," CSEA president Theodore C. Wenzl said Sunday, with the next clash coming when negotiations over a new contract begin in a few months. The current contract expires next March 31.

At an emergency meeting of union leaders Saturday, it was announced that only 47 percent of the 50,000 members returning mail ballots favored a strike, while 53 percent opposed a walkout.

the few union members who refused to strike.

Bartles said at a news conference today that he is optimistic a settlement can be reached shortly, and said county departments will continue to try to provide all necessary services to the taxpayers. One of the CSEA members, walking the picket line this morning, said that the office building is running short of fuel, that inoperative telephones and elevators are not being repaired because the unions handling those services have refused to cross picket lines.

Frank, one of about 35 state CSEA staff members from Albany, said today that he is not optimistic that a satisfactory settlement will be reached shortly. "There is no indication that the board of representatives is about to make substantial movement. They have put us off all along. Either the board of representatives starts talking or they might be seeing us where they work," indicating that picket lines might be set up around the representatives' places of business, such as IBM.

"I think we surprised a lot of people," said Maserjian. "There is no tradition of striking in Dutchess County. This is the first time that the workers have walked off the job. I think the turnout today is an indication that we believe in what we're doing and that we won't give up til we get what we want."

More than a dozen sheriff's deputies and city police kept close watch on the picket lines. There were no incidents.

Winds, Heavy Rain Hit County

By Tim Schuster

PORT EWEN
Armed with a chain saw, Esopus Supervisor George Freer saw the fallen trees were getting ahead of himself and Highway Superintendent Joseph Clark Sunday afternoon and he called a state of emergency.

Two councilmen, Frank Bell and Thomas Johnson, were scheduled to meet with State Senator Richard Schermerhorn today to seek emergency relief funds for damages suffered by Esopus during the torrential rains and lightning.

The town appeared to be the most severely hit in Ulster County by storms that ranged over the Eastern seaboard and struck already drenched New Jersey the hardest.

Locally, apart from the sloping topography of Esopus that led to mudslides, cellar flooding, and the lightning that struck numerous trees, damages seemed to be confined to a couple of Kingston homes hit by lightning bolts; widely scattered electrical power outages of short duration; the loss of Kingston Cablevision overnight for Woodstock and Slightsburg customers, and no significant personal injuries.

Across the Hudson River in Dutchess County, fire and flood officials were casting anxious eyes at the rain swollen Wappingers and Fallkill Creeks, expected to crest sometime late today. There has already been flooding from the traditionally troublesome Wappingers Creek, which extends from the northeastern portion of the county south to the river at Wappingers, Staatsburg and Pleasant Valley were the scenes of initial flooded conditions.

The Kingston City Engineer's office reported three inches of rain from yesterday's storms, while 1.62 inches fell in about three hours Sunday at Cooper Lake.

In Esopus, Freer and Clark were attempting to cut uprooted trees and clear town roads with crews. When it became apparent that they were falling behind, Freer called the state of emergency in order to warn residents to keep off the roads if possible.

Clark reported troubles in Port Ewen, Slightsburg, West Park, and Esopus ("it seemed to be on this side of the mountains") and Councilman Johnson reported water damage and mudslides in addition to the dozens of uprooted trees. Clark's account accompanied Johnson and Bell in their quest for some kind of relief from the state. Johnson noted it would "destroy our budget" to pick up the entire tab.

Two Kingston homes suffered extensive damage when struck by lightning, and several others minor damages. The Charles Kresser home at 105 Amsterdam Avenue, hit at 2:56 and Eugene Van Steenburg home at 288 Linderman Avenue, hit at 4:59, were the worst with sections of the roof and chimney damaged. The Theresa Williams home at 31 Maple Street had four feet of water in the basement. Kingston firemen answered seven storm-related calls in five hours.

Central Hudson reported short power outages in West Camp, Ellenville, Glenelg, and Stone Ridge, all caused by tree limbs contacting condensers and blowing fuses in the late afternoon. No main lines were out. Service was restored for the most part, by early evening.

Kingston Cablevision lost power to its head end in Woodstock at 3:30 p.m., Sunday and television screens were still out today. Slightsburg also lost cablevision overnight, and several other areas were out temporarily due to lack of current to the head ends from Central Hudson. The Rhinecliff head end had its power supply burned out when struck by lightning.

The Department of Public Works in Kingston had "very few problems" with only a few manhole covers floating off, according to a spokesman.

Meanwhile, in New Jersey, Trenton received 6.11 inches of rain in ten hours, the heaviest ever recorded in that central New Jersey city, causing the Assunpink Creek to crest at a record 15 feet. A state of emergency was declared in Trenton, where the train station was under eight feet of water and 18 city streets were sealed off.

VICTIM OF GULF OF MEXICO HURRICANE

Treasure Hunting And Then Tragedy

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — "It's a powerful ocean," said Mel Fisher as he stared blankly across the sun-shimmered waters of the Gulf of Mexico. "It takes people and ships."

In the 17th century, the ocean took to its bottom a Spanish treasure ship, the "Nuestra Senora de Atocha." Last week Fisher, head of Treasure Salvors Inc., triumphantly announced his team had discovered the Atocha and its valuable cargo.

Sunday, triumph turned to tragedy. The sea struck back and claimed Fisher's son, a daughter-in-law and one of his divers.

They died when the firm's converted 60-foot tugboat, the "Northwind," capsized and sank in predawn darkness while its crew of 11 slept.

Dirk Fisher, 21, the skipper of the boat, his wife, Angel, 25, and Rick Gage, 21, a diver for Treasure Salvors, were trapped below deck and drowned.

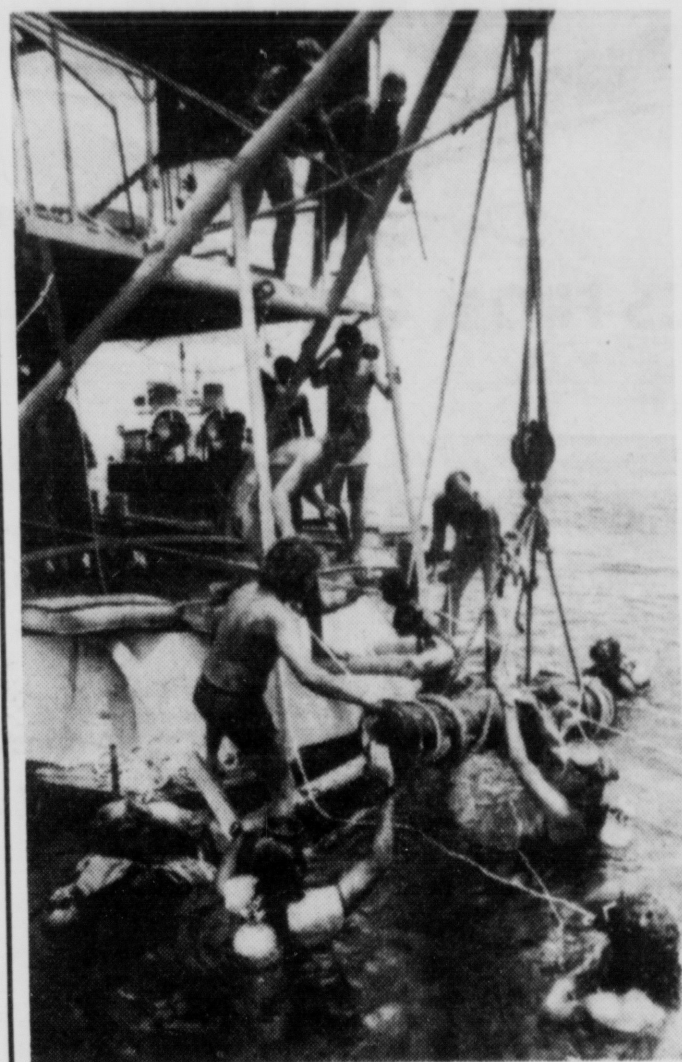

"It's an unfortunate accident — a helluva tragedy," Fisher, 52, said in a barely audible voice. "I'm just very sad."

The accident came one week after the discovery of bronze cannon and other artifacts from the Atocha, a galleon which sank in a 1622 hurricane. The firm said the vessel had about $100 million in gold and silver aboard.

Survivors said a bilge pump or hose apparently broke after they had retired Saturday night and one side of the Northwind's steel hull silently filled with water as it lay at anchor about 40 miles west of here.

Don Kincaid, 29, the expedition's underwater photographer, said he was sleeping on the upper deck. He awoke suddenly.

"I've been at sea so long I just knew something was wrong," Kincaid said. "I went downstairs to the engine room and found water up to my knees."

Triumphant Wheat Belt Landing For Russia's Two Cosmonauts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Russia's two cosmonauts landed triumphantly in a cloud of dust in the nation's central Asian wheat belt today, carrying five United States flags symbolizing their historic meeting in space with three Americans.

Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov waved and gestured animatedly as they climbed out of their scorched Soyuz spaceship. Moscow control reported the crew was in good shape.

Their American colleagues — Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton — were still in their sleep period when the ship they had docked with in orbit parachuted to a landing in a smooth field, touching down at 6:51 a.m. EDT.

The Americans will stay in orbit three more days to continue scientific investigations. They are to splash down in the Pacific Ocean Thursday. The Soyuz was lowered by a big orange and white striped parachute to within six miles of its bullseye near the town of Arkalyk, 310 miles northwest of the Baikonur Cosmodrome they rocketed away from last Tuesday.

Television cameras from aboard helicopters beamed the view live around the world. This was the first live telecast of a Soviet space landing. The flight of the Russians and Americans, unprecedented in this age of space, was the product of détente. It turned space rivalry into what could be a new era of unity in man's exploration of the universe.

The Apollo astronauts were given a wakeup call 18 minutes after the landing and told of the successful Soviet touchdown.

"Give 'em my best," Stafford said. "Tell them I'm glad everything went good."

The Russian capsule came to rest on its side and rescuers were flown by helicopter to the scene immediately. The two cosmonauts, wearing white spacesuits, were quickly helped out of the ship by teams in white overalls.

Leonov was first out. He waved to the crowd of on-lookers and greeted his rescuers with a big bear hug. Kubasov quickly followed.

"The cosmonauts feel well," Moscow control reported. Then the cosmonauts posed for pictures for newsmen in front of the seared spacecraft. The spacemen then walked to a helicopter to be taken a nearby medical center for a check up.

The side of the Soyuz, once a gleaming green, was blackened and streaked with white from the heat of reentry into the atmosphere.

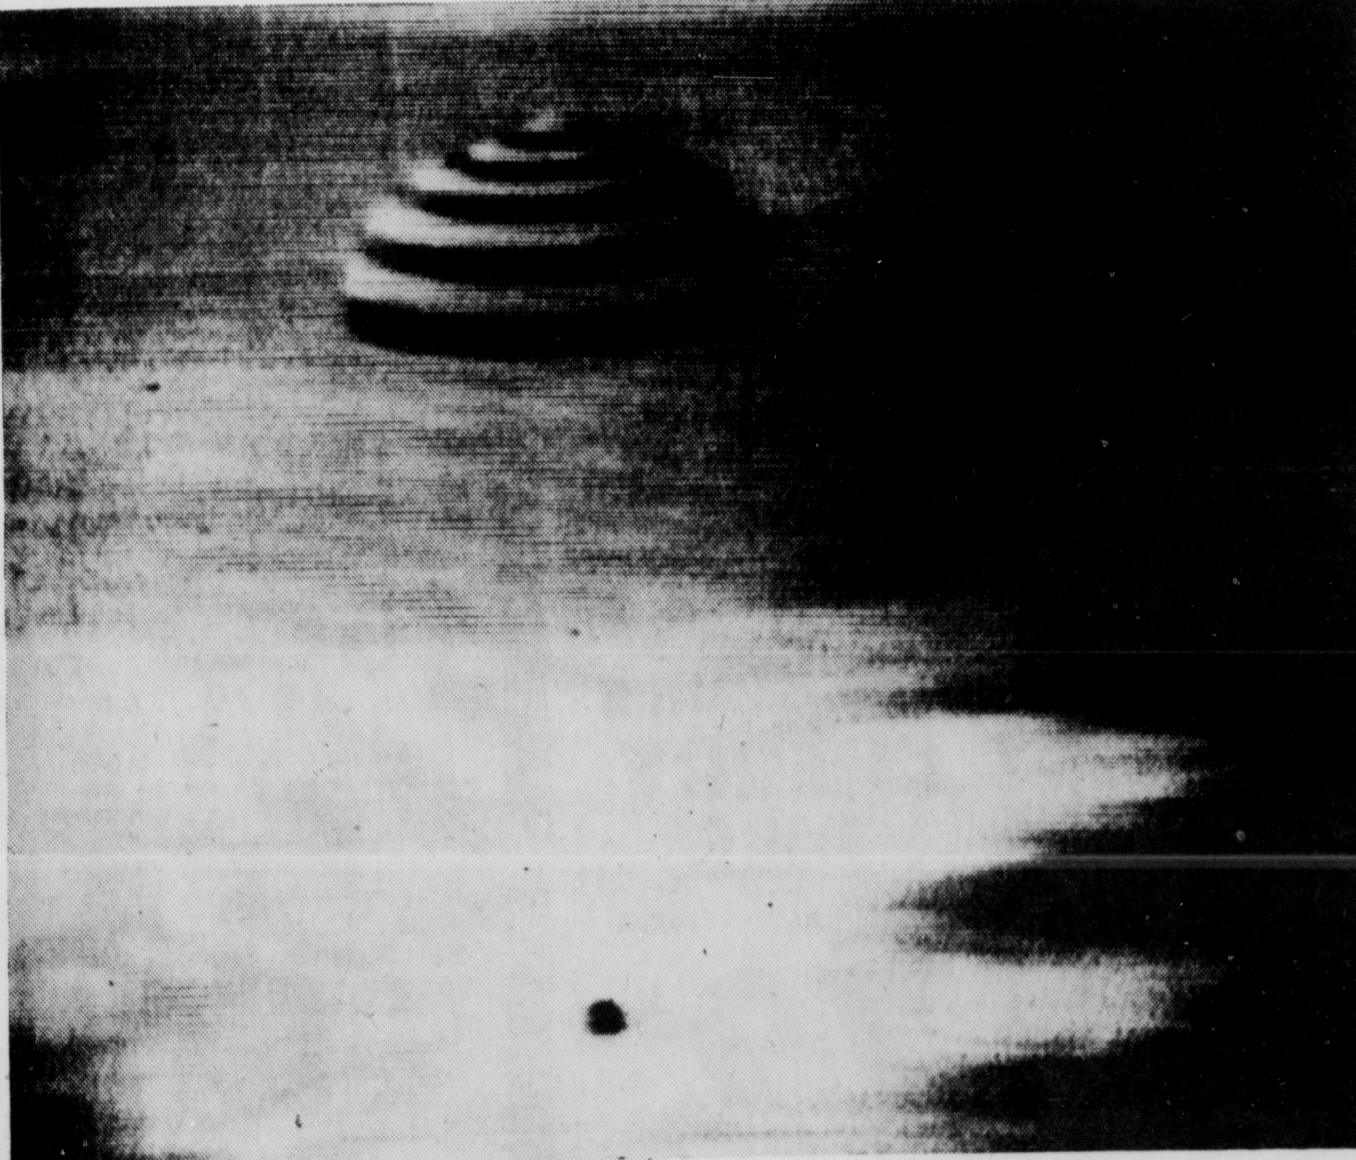

A set of four rockets was fired when the ship was several feet above the dry landing field, kicking up dust that resembled the spray of water when Apollo capsules splash down.

All four were employed at the Utopia Lodge in Greenfield Park, police said.

"He just happened to be there," one investigator said of the choice of Krausz as the victim in the shooting. Some 700 students attend Camp Rav-Tov, according to authorities.

The four charged with second degree murder, which carries a mandatory life prison sentence upon conviction, were confined in the Ulster County Jail without bail following arraignment before Wawarsing Town Justice Harold Sashin.

In charge of the intensive investigation following the shooting were BCI Captain K.D. O'Dell and Senior BCI Investigator James A. Fitzgerald. First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh and Assistant District Attorney Paul Gruner assisted at the scene.

Unemployment Fund Faces Crisis

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Unless employer taxes are raised or the economy suddenly spurts upward, New York's unemployment insurance fund will be in serious trouble in the near future, a state audit warns.

Comptroller Arthur Levitt said Sunday night the fund, currently slightly less than $1 billion, would shrink to less than half that amount by the end of 1977 unless steps are taken to replenish it.

"The continuing decline in the balance of the fund is of great concern, particularly in light of the current economic situation," Levitt said in the audit.

"In the absence of sufficient self-supporting tax contributions from employers," the Democratic comptroller said, the state may be forced to either borrow federal funds or take general tax receipts from other programs to pay for unemployment compensation.

Set up in 1935, the fund is currently financed solely from taxes levied against employers.

Because of high unemployment over the last several years, the audit said, the fund has withered from $1.8 billion at the beginning of 1970 to a projected $720 million at the end of this year.

By the end of 1977, the auditors said, the fund will be reduced to only $390 million unless unemployment drops dramatically or employer contributions are increased.

Levitt also criticized two bills, one proposed by the Democratic administration and the other by the Senate's Republican leadership, which would have increased benefits.

He said the bills, neither of which was passed into law, would have further depleted the unemployment fund without increasing taxes flowing into the reserve.

State Farms, Acreage Increases

ALBANY — The status of agricultural districts in New York State passed two historic milestones

Democratic Gov. Hugh L. Carey's proposal would have increased basic unemployment benefits from the current $95 a week maximum to $125 and would have added allowances, ranging upwards to another $40 a week, for dependants.

GOP Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson's bill would have added allowances for up to three dependants, bringing the maximum to $124 a week.

Both measures were intended to be temporary, but critics expressed skepticism that, once raised, maximum benefits would ever be rolled back.

The comptroller said that, using State Labor Department figures, the governor's proposal, unless accompanied by heavier levies on employers, would have placed the fund $65 million in the red by the end of 1977.

Levitt said Anderson's proposal would have trimmed the fund to $450 million by the same time.

Levitt said the level of the fund "must be monitored closely and legislation introduced, if necessary, to ensure its continued viability."

He also said "it may be appropriate for the state's congressional delegation to seek special federal aid to replenish the state's unemployment fund" since "federal efforts to stem inflation have contributed to the recent downturn in the economy."

in July, according to John S. Dyson, state commissioner of agriculture and markets.

According to the July report of the department's Agricultural Resources Commission, the number of farms in districts has now passed 10,000 and the number of acres in districts either formed or undergoing state review has exceeded three million acres. These farms contribute more than $1.3 billion a year to the state's economy and provide employment for nearly 45,500 persons.

The state budget cut funds to the college and early reports raised fears that the college would close mastitis control labs in Earlville, Canton, and Kingston.

Kelder explained that mastitis, an inflammation of the udder, was once a major threat to the dairy industry but has been minimized by the work of the three laboratories. He cited the efforts of both the farm bureau and the State Department of Agriculture and Markets in keeping them open.

"The decision to maintain

Mastitis Labs to Stay Open

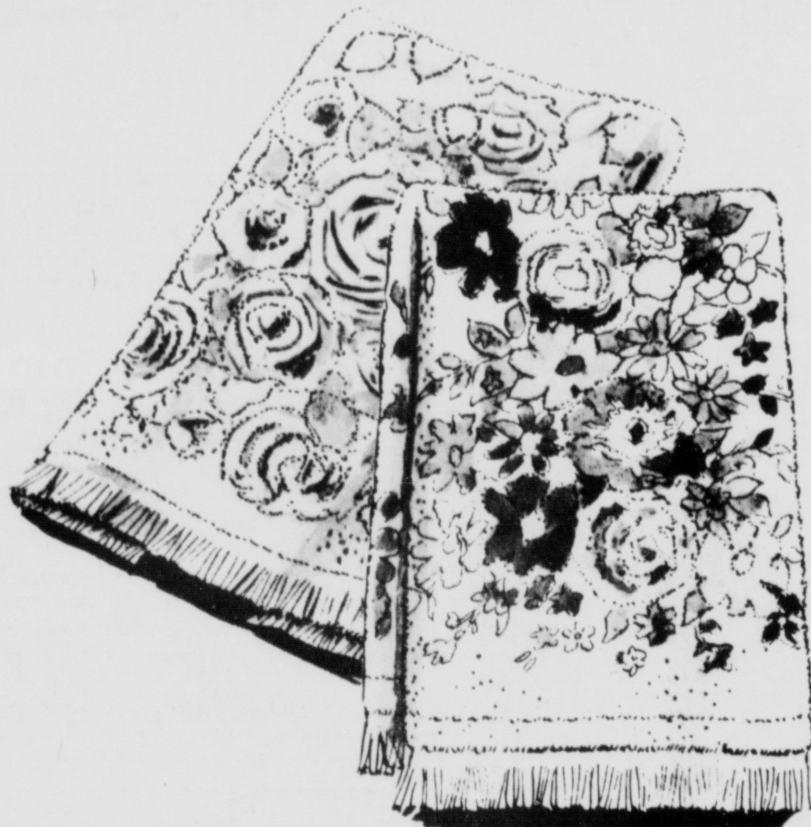

KINGSTON — An Ulster County Farm Bureau leader says his organization was instrumental in saving three state mastitis control laboratories from a fiscal sequestration.

S. Robert Kelder, chairman of the bureau's Dairy Committee, said the decision to keep the facilities open for the coming year was made after a recent meeting between Richard McGuire, farm bureau president, and Dr. Edward Melby, dean of the New York State Veterinary College at Cornell University.

Was Assassination of JFK An Act of Retaliation?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The assassination of President John Kennedy may have been an act of retaliation against attempts on the life of Cuban premier Fidel Castro, says Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa.

Schweiker, a member of the Senate committee investigating U.S. intelligence activities, said Sunday "one of the spinoffs" of the investigation could be a reopening of the Kennedy assassination probe. Richard Goodwin, a former Kennedy White House aide, meanwhile was quoted today as saying Kennedy told him in November, 1961, "If we get into that sort of thing (assassinations of foreign leaders), we'll all be targets." In an interview with the Washington Post, Goodwin said Kennedy meant chiefs of state such as himself might be the subject of assassination attempts.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk also had expressed a similar apprehension following the assassination of Dominican Republic dictator Rafael Trujillo in May, 1961, Goodwin said.

Kennedy ruled out any American involvement in such an assassination, he said. But suspicions of American complicity were raised when press secretary Pierre Salinger, informed of Trujillo's death by cable from the U.S. consul general who had maintained close contact with dissidents, announced the news — unaware the Dominicans had not yet made it public.

Because of that, Goodwin said, "the Cubans thought Kennedy was involved. At least (Cuban Foreign Minister) Raul Roa did."

Schweiker said he knew of no new evidence in the Kennedy assassination but would welcome a fresh look at evidence already in hand.

While agreeing with chairman Frank Church's assessment there is no evidence linking any president with political assassination plots, he said "I think it's fair to say there is no direct evidence that exonerates a president from assassination plots and I think that's just as important."

He was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Schweiker said the Warren Commission report, which concluded that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in shooting Kennedy in Dallas, had a "fatal flaw" in ignoring motivation for the killing.

"The Warren Commission report makes no reference and apparently had no knowledge of the number of attempts that were launched against Castro — in killing Castro — and that was the political motivation for this situation, which is the first thing you look at," said Schweiker.

'No Psychiatric Exam'...

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The publisher of the Saturday Evening Post says the magazine has no intention of having former President Richard Nixon's papers examined by a psychiatrist and a psychologist.

Also, said Dr. Cory SerVaas, Julie Nixon Eisenhower is still an editor in good standing of the Post.

Dr. SerVaas, publisher of the Post and co-editor with her husband, Beurt, commented on a report quoting her that the Post plans a psychiatric examination of Nixon's papers.

"I never said that," she said. "We are not having any psychiatrist or psychologist look at any of Nixon's papers."

The question was asked because of reports such a review was being made by the Post and because of speculation the review might document some of the extreme stress under which Nixon lived in the last months of his presidency.

Dr. SerVaas said what the Post is doing is "a story for the January issue and possibly a series of stories about people who have remained loyal to President Nixon and support him for the good things he has done."

"We want to do a good, objective article and interview people who know what causes people to get on a bandwagon and what causes them to stay on or to get off."

Dr. SerVaas said the thrust of the article, as discussed by her and others on the staff, is aimed at "mass loyalty and mass hate."

She also was distressed by another magazine's article about Mrs. Eisenhower, an assistant managing editor at the Post.

She said, "People magazine made it look like we just had Julie on our staff because her father was president and that we were phasing her out because her father no longer is in the White House."

"That is not true. Julie stands on her own right. She is a good editor. She was here last week. In September she will become consulting editor to the Curtis Publishing Company."

"She works more on books instead of the Saturday Evening Post. Right now she is working on the Saturday Evening Post Christmas book. The Julie Eisenhower Cook Book for Children comes out next week."

"Julie is a very effective person who works terribly hard and gets books out faster than we can get them printed."

'76 Auto Production Underway

DETROIT (UPI) — The U.S. auto industry's first 1976 model car was being built today amid hopes it will signal an end to the longest sales slump since the Depression of the 1930s.

American Motors was producing the first '76 model at its Kenosha, Wis., plant after a two-week vacation shutdown. The rest of the industry won't complete the switchover until August and September. Word also was out that opened layoffs in the industry, some dating back to energy crisis cutbacks in early 1974, are now down to 129,000 workers. The lowest figure since Christmas still accounts for 18 percent of the industry's blue collar labor force.

Perhaps the most significant new model startup will come in mid-August when General Motors begins production of its new Chevrolet Chevette, the smallest U.S.-built car and the first major competition for the mini-foreign models.

The Chevette, which GM is hoping will be rated by the government at 40 miles per gallon on the highway, is 17 inches shorter and 400 pounds lighter than the Chevrolet Vega. Its 85-cubic inch, four-cylinder engine will put it in direct competition with cars the size and power of the Volkswagen Rabbit.

The Chevette will be introduced with the rest of the Chevrolet line in early October.

This week, 31 of the nation's 58 car and truck assembly lines are shut down and for the second week in a row, auto production will fall below 100,000.

GM has seven plants closed, all for model changeovers; Ford's 23 assembly lines are down for the second week of scheduled vacations; and Chrysler's Belvidere, Ill., plant is closed to reduce output of big cars.

Avenging A Rape

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Six women angered by the rape of a friend barged into a house, overpowered the suspected rapist and slashed him in revenge, a police detective says.

Police Chief R.H. Palmer identified the rape suspect Sunday as John Dotson, 20, of Daytona Beach. He was listed in satisfactory condition, under guard in a hospital's intensive care ward and undergoing treatment for cuts on the face, arms, shoulders and abdomen.

Dotson was charged with one count of sexual battery.

Police said they were called to the Dotson home about 2 p.m. Friday by his relatives. Officers found Dotson in the front yard, holding a towel to his bleeding face.

Police said he had been attacked in the yard. A relative said, however, the attack occurred inside the house, while Dotson's girl friend and two sisters were in a back room.

The relative said six women entered the house and overpowered Dotson. Two reportedly held him down on the floor while the others slashed him.

Police Sgt. Robert Sharpe said Sunday, "I understand there is a connection."

Another put it more directly: "They were avenging the rape, that's what they were doing."

Police said the unidentified rape victim reported a man jumped into her car, held a razor to her throat and forced her to drive to an apartment where she was sexually assaulted early Friday.

When she resisted, she said, she was slashed across the throat. She was treated at a hospital and released.

Feasibility Study

Since the Koenig Administration has been loath to do anything about the old city hall until a suitable tenant has been signed, sealed and delivered. Delivered, perhaps this suggestion might assist the mayor to get off dead center. The state's Division of Historic Preservation will cooperate with local municipalities in compiling a historic structures report serving as a detailed study of what and what shouldn't be preserved in any building labeled an historic landmark. Further, and more important, this report also studies what functional use a structure such as the old city hall can have. This point has always been stressed by the mayor, and such a feasibility report may provide the key to his problem. The cost? Once again it's a matching funds arrangement with the state spending what the city spends. However, such a study should cost no more than $8,000, so for a reasonable $4,000 Kingston could have its answer on what to do about this problem.

Stamp Reform

The federal Food Stamp program has come to resemble something that escaped from Dr. Frankenstein's laboratory. Sen. James L. Buckley of New York and the 11 senators and 55 House members joining him in sponsorship of a reform measure may have found a way to get the monster back under control.

They would change the basic approach for deciding who is eligible for a government subsidy of grocery bills. As it is, eligibility is determined on the basis of the net income of an individual or family—what is left after a series of allowable deductions for the cost of housing, gas for the car and other living expenses.

As experience with the program has revealed, families with an income well above the poverty level may be maintaining a life-style that reduces their "net income" to a level that meets the qualification for food stamps. The Buckley proposal would cut through all of the arithmetic and base eligibility on gross income—before deductions.

The senator estimates that this reform and others, including tighter standards covering college students, could clear the way to increase Food Stamp benefits by 29 per cent for those who really need help, and still cut the overall cost of the program.

This effort comes not a day too soon. The runaway Food Stamp program will be chewing up dollars at the rate of $6.6 billion in the current fiscal year if Congress does not put some kind of rein on its loose standards of eligibility. Some critics say poor families are not getting enough stamps to provide a nutritious diet. If that's the case, Sen. Buckley has pointed out what needs to be done.

Berry's World

"Nope, you're wrong! This curve does not represent the economy—it's 'middle class discontent'!"

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—In the American drama, reporters constantly try to uncover the misdeeds that the authorities cover up. It is not surprising, therefore, that some officials want to muzzle cantankerous reporters.

The big weapon against the press today is the subpoena. It is used to wipe out the reporter's First Amendment right to conceal the identity of his sources.

This is essentially an attack on investigative reporting, which cannot exist without confidential sources. Any reporter who divulges confidences obtained in his professional capacity will lose his sources.

Most of our own confidential informants are dedicated public servants, who become disturbed over mismanagement, mis-spending and corruption in their agencies.

To whom should they report the wrongdoing? Many come to us because they don't trust the government to investigate itself. They come in confidence because they fear reprisals from superiors who may be implicated in the misconduct.

There is nothing devious about this process. It is precisely what our Founding Fathers intended. It is the reason, indeed, that they established in the First Amendment certain freedoms and immunities for the press.

The reporter's function is to give the people an alternate source of information so they are not dependent only upon official pronouncements; to expose and thus stop a particular bit of public mischief; to set in motion the reforms that will prevent its recurrence.

Only tangentially is the reporter concerned with the conviction of the guilty parties, which is the task not of the press but of the state.

Good lawmen, prosecutors and judges welcome the help of the press in exposing corruption. So essential is this function that Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., has said: "With minor exception, every major scandal in public office over the past 20 years was uncovered by the press."

Legislators in many states have passed "shield laws" to supplement the First Amendment in protecting reporters from harassment about their sources.

But some prosecutors and judges wear the mantle of Richard Nixon, the king of coverup. Nixon was haunted by dark secrets and, in an attempt to hide them committed first the blunders and then the crimes that produced the greatest political scandal in American history—Watergate.

A little Watergate still lingers at all levels of government. In California, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York and Ohio, reporters have been subpoenaed—more than 50 in the past four months—and placed in varying degrees of jeopardy over this matter of confidential sources.

We will cite three cases at random:

—In Fresno, Calif., four newsmen from the Fresno Bee have been sentenced to indefinite jail terms by Judge Denver Peckinpaugh for refusing to disclose where they obtained grand jury evidence of local corruption. California has a shield law, which supposedly prevents judges from ordering reporters to divulge their sources. But Judge Peckinpaugh considers himself above the law, saying it intrudes on his prerogatives. Appeal pending.

—In Moscow, Idaho, Jay Shelledy of the Lewiston Morning Tribune has been sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge Roy Mossman for refusing to reveal a news source. Appeal pending.

—In Los Angeles, Calif., reporter William Farr awaits an appeals ruling on whether he will be returned to jail—where he already has served 46 days—for refusing to reveal his sources to Judge Charles Older.

Such judges are not necessarily corrupt. Some are merely incompetent, others arrogant. In their puffed-up importance, they demand that all considerations must yield to the majesty of their courts.

In their narrow circle of omnipotence, they resent the necessary immunities that make possible the institutions that preserve freedom—immunities traditionally given the family, the church, the university, the doctors, the press.

Other like Chief Justice Warren Burger with his talk of "pipsqueak reporters" regard the press that has embarrassed the Establishment as a menace to be put in its place.

So it is that in many places the courts, to augment their own power, are making war on the Constitution.

SPACE GENESIS: Last week's linkup between the Apollo and Soyuz spacecrafts is a monumental step towards peace on earth. Few people realize, however, how it all began.

The idea was conceived by editor Jess Gorkin of PARADE Magazine, who also first proposed the hot line between Moscow and Washington. His suggestion of a joint space flight was published in PARADE in 1966. Three years later, astronaut Frank Borman discussed the concept with Soviet cosmonaut Ghermain Titov. A final agreement was signed on May 24, 1972. "Now we will meet in space as this man (Gorkin) said. Together we have begun an irreversible thing."

'SOME PEOPLE IN CONGRESS ARE OUT TO GET ME'

Copley News Service

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—President Ford's belated, backhanded invitation to Alexander Solzhenitsyn, rejected with deserved contempt by the Russian Nobel laureate, concludes a dreary sequence of events suggesting thorny problems amid today's rosy euphoria the White House.

The President's treatment of Solzhenitsyn reflected qualities more typical of Richard M. Nixon than Gerald R. Ford: lack of informed political consultation, gross insensitivity, equivocal explanations, just plain bad manners.

The affair seems so out of character for Mr. Ford that it points to pervasive foreign policy influence over the President by Dr. Henry Kissinger wearing dual hats as Secretary of State and national security adviser. Kissinger's use of that influence to reinforce his often dogmatic concept of détente has now led Mr. Ford into the Solzhenitsyn thicket and could lead him into trouble on far larger issues.

Kissinger exerted his influence in a personal memorandum to the President last month stating it would be politically inadvisable for him to attend the AFL-CIO banquet honoring Solzhenitsyn here June 30. The memo added, however, it would be acceptable for Mr. Ford to meet with the great anti-communist novelist at some White House reception, converse, by implication, a private Ford-Solzhenitsyn meeting would not be acceptable. At the same time, the State Department quietly barred all its officials from attending the dinner.

None of the senior officials who would have urged Mr. Ford to see the Russian—including top White House aide Donald Rumsfeld and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger—was consulted. The matter was not brought up at a National Security Council Meeting.

Sen. Jesse Helms, the right-wing Republican from North Carolina, next asked the White House to arrange a Ford-Solzhenitsyn meeting for June 30. Partly because Helms is held in low regard at the White House, the President quickly rejected him.

Following Kissinger's advice, the President stayed away from the AFL-CIO dinner. Some administration notables—Schlesinger, Secretary of Labor John Dunlop, United Nations Ambassador

Daniel P. Moynihan, deputy disarmament director John Lehman—followed their consciences and attended. Even one or two lower-level State Department officials defied the Kissinger edict.

Those who attended, particularly Moynihan, were sharply criticized within the State Department. But the administration soon faced deeper trouble. To the surprise of the White House, outrage was growing over the President's snub of Solzhenitsyn—particularly among Republican conservatives.

Mississippi Republican state chairman Clarke Reed wrote a scathing letter to Rumsfeld asking whether Schlesinger would be fired for attending the dinner and thereby committing detente deviationism. Ronald Reagan delivered his first personal attack on Mr. Ford on his weekly syndicated column.

Belatedly alarmed, senior Presidential aides discussed Solzhenitsyn daily last week, finally agreeing last Friday that Mr. Ford should tell his Saturday press conference in Chicago he would see Solzhenitsyn if the novelist requested a meeting. When no reporter asked the proper question, the President issued a statement at 6 p.m. Saturday which was predictably ignored. On NBC's Meet the Press Sunday, Solzhenitsyn brushed the half-hearted invitation aside by saying he did not come to America to talk to government officials.

That still leaves the question of why the President would not eagerly greet a legitimate international hero. Background statements of high officials that Solzhenitsyn is a non-westernized Slavic mystic explain nothing.

Nor does the theory that Kissinger really feared Russia's most prominent anti-communist turning up in the Oval Office would wreck détente. Although administration hard-liners believe Kissinger thinks detente is much too fragile, the Secretary of State knows better than anybody else that the Kremlin's grand strategy cannot be aborted by Washington atmospherics.

Rather, the snub may be explained by the major, still private criticism of Kissinger within the administration: he has become too accustomed to close collaboration with Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and lesser Soviet leaders. To socialize with the Soviet regime's blood enemy would be discourteous to friendly adversaries. Soviet leaders say blandly they would never entertain American Communist Angela Davis at the Kremlin. So, some U.S. officials privately equate treatment of Miss Davis there and Solzhenitsyn here, a ridiculous comparison that robs anti-Communism of all ideological content.

Hard Luck and Good People

Witness . . . The news ticker was brief: Donna Angerami, 14, of 356 Carr Ave., Keansburg, N.J., was hit by a car and injured as she was riding a bicycle home last night. The young girl was taken to Riverview Hospital in Red Bank with multiple injuries.

Witness, her mother, Mrs. George Angerami, in tears: Oh, my God? I don't believe it. She and Debbie rode their bikes to Sears to get a blouse. They turned off Route 35 onto Palmer Avenue. Oh, my God! How do I get to the hospital? How is she?

Witness, Debbie: We were on the way home. We were laughing and talking this woman came up behind us fast. We didn't even know an automobile was there.

The bike made a screeching sound. Donna was lying on the road. She wasn't crying. She wasn't moving either. Some man came out of a brown house. He phoned for an ambulance.

People came out and tried to lift Donna's head. There was some blood and one leg hung funny. I was scared. The ambulance men tried to speak to Donna but her eyes were closed.

Witness, emergency room physician: This child is going to need a neurosurgeon. Phone Doctor L. Donahue at home. See if he can get down here at once. Also phone Dr. Charles Kelly. He's the family doctor. This kid has a broken leg, but she's got a lot more.

Keansburg policeman: She seemed small for 14. A sweet-looking kid with black curly hair and dark complexion. What can I tell you? The mother is alone. She has three growing children.

Hospital phone operator: No visitors. The Angerami girl is in intensive care. Yes, over a week. Condition critical.

Doctor, on phone: She has been in a coma over two weeks. No. We can't make a prognosis. Her vital signs are stable. One leg is broken in three places. The family should be told to expect brain damage. Who knows? She may come out of it tomorrow, and then again . . .

Local reporter: A bad scene. The father left the mother, Joan, and George, Donna and Stephen. Joan tried to bring them up. Got a job as waitress. Skidded and fell on wet marble floor. Permanent back injury.

Couldn't find husband. Slipped down and down. Family now on welfare. No car. No money. Friends drive the mother to hospital twice a day. Father arrived from another state. Visited hospital. Spoke to mother. Left. Had to get back to work.

Witness, nurse: She lays there like a little doll. We take turns stroking her cheek. Sometimes the eyes flutter. Its been almost a month. Such a sweet face.

Witness, Grandmother Anna: I just can't believe all that hard luck. Bursts into tears. I'm sorry. You have children, your do your best. God, how many things have gone wrong with Joan. Poor little Donna. John and I were on vacation when it happened.

We drove up from Florida. We just wanted to see the grandchildren. Then this happened. If you could see how quiet she is in that hospital bed. She has good color—red lips and all. I spoke to her. I even pinched her cheeks. Nothing. She's in a deep, deep sleep.

Witness, Grandfather: What could we do? We went to see her every day. They wouldn't even let us send flowers. Joan talks and smiles around the house. Then, out of left field, she starts to sob. What could we do? We drove home to Florida. Grandmother Anna, phone operator at Waikiki Motel: I tell you, people are so darned nice. Mr. Richard Rubin the manager heard about Donna and he asked me what I was going to do for her. I said, nothing, except have a mass said. He said, 'Let me know how much a month full of masses cost and I'll give it to you.'

Isn't that something?

Witness, Grandmother Anna, two days later: Mr. Rubin came over to the switchboard again. He said he was thinking about Donna. He said if I would fly north to see her, He'd pay my air fare and I would be on full salary. Know something? It takes hard luck to find the solid gold people. . . .

Witness, Doctor Donahue: No change. The nurses put Donna's hair up in little igtails. Her mother said Donna doesn't like pigtails. This morning a nurse found one of the pigtails undone.

She tried to put it back up. Donna put a hand on her head, covering the loose pigtail. Does it mean anything? I wish I knew.

'A Day in the Country' Theme of Fair

The Annual Woodstock Library Fair

Woodstock, N. Y.

A WOODSTOCK LIBRARY FAIR EARLY IN THE CENTURY.

"Come to the Woodstock Library Fair this Friday. We've planned this day to be just plain fun," says Rod Futertas, chairman of the Library Fair committee.

Set to begin at 10 a.m., the committee promises bargains in clothing, books, furniture and antiques. A variety of special awards, including a $1,000 and a $500 U.S. Savings Bond, and a William Pachner print, will be presented. There will be a special children's Midway with games, helium balloons, animals, fortune-telling, cotton candy. Youngsters will have a pool to splash in, a car to paint, costumes to dress up in, and jazz music to hear. A mime performance by the National Shakespeare Company is also planned.

Once again, there will be music by Barbara Moncure's steel band. The Novo Folk Dance Company, directed by Ron Sanders, will perform at noon. Erik Van Cort will take pictures of people in costume. Palm reading by Dorothy Greene-Pepper will begin at 1 p.m.

Children from the Creative Arts Day Camp will perform a play with dancing and music at the Town Hall at 1 p.m. Other special events and entertainment will take place throughout the day.

Hot and cold foods and homebaked goods will be available. The Woodstock Garden Club will be selling plants and flowers.

In keeping with the theme of this year's fair—A Day in the Country—fair workers will be dressed in old-fashioned country clothes.

Rain date for the fair is Saturday, July 26.

Slide Presentation on Photography

"Image Structure, Mind Structure: Photography as Mirror," is the title of the slide presentation to be made by Peter Schlessinger at the Artists' Cooperative on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at Parnassus Square in Woodstock.

The uniqueness of Schlessinger's approach to photography is the way he chooses to reveal the meaning of a photograph. His presentation deals with both the use of photography and the interpreting of photographs as expressions of the "inner landscape," that is, the mind and spirit of the photographer. With this approach, the photograph is used as a tool to understanding various levels of consciousness, thus creating a dialogue between the photographer and the photograph, as well as the photograph and the audience.

In June, 1971, Schlessinger founded Apeiron, a photography workshop center located at Millerton, which he now directs. The Apeiron workshop is now on-going program with classes being given by well known photographers across the country. The significance of Apeiron has been recognized with several grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and by the New York State Council on the Arts.

Legal Secretaries Dinner Meeting

Principals at the July dinner meeting of Ulster County Legal Secretaries Association included (l-r) Michelle Schwerdtfeger, President; Martha Gans, Ulster County Sheriff's Department, Sex Crime Unit; Nancy O'Hara, director of rehabilitation, Ulster County Jail; Jacqueline Smith, chairman, ways and means committee. (Freeman photo)

The Ulster County Legal Secretaries held its monthly dinner meeting at Novi's at High Falls.

Mrs. Nancy O'Hara, Director of Rehabilitation at the Ulster County Sheriff's office, was one of the guest speakers and displayed copies of newspapers which are edited every month by some of the 100 prisoners in the Ulster County Jail. According to Mrs. O'Hara ninety percent of prisoners come from broken homes with lack of love or alcoholic backgrounds. Mrs. O'Hara spoke of the general education program; two teachers are available for high school equivalency courses and four counselors for mental health and drug rehabilitation. Three women counselors teach pottery and clay work. The Bar Association also assists in rehabilitation as well as drama groups from Woodstock. Mrs. O'Hara said that community groups assist in programs and that any donations of money, art supplies, magazines and playing cards or volunteer assistance would be appreciated.

Martha Gans, also of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department, spoke of the increase in rape and sex crimes, of the help for victims, protection for women campaign, and female deputies.

Ways and means chairman, Jackie Smith, announced that a Flea Market will be held on the old Deamie Restaurant property at Woodstock on August 23 and members are requested to donate articles.

Members are invited to attend the "Lunch and Learn" program to commence on September 24, sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Association of Ulster County, to be held the third Wednesday of each month from noon to 12:30 p.m. at 74 John Street, Kingston.

The next dinner meeting will be held on August 20 at Mariner's Harbor, Highland.

Guests present were Sarah Bleitzhofer, Lori Brown, Joy Schlosser, Rita Laporte, Martha Gans and Nancy O'Hara.

Cultural Activities At Parker Theatre

Parker Theatre, the home of the Summer Repertory Theatre at S.U.C. at New Paltz, is also the site of other cultural activities. This year's program has been expanded, beyond the three plays in repertory, to include concerts, art exhibits, a children's play, and films. Throughout the season Parker Theatre will house these cultural events weekly: silent films on Sunday nights, concerts on Wednesday nights, art exhibits in the upstairs lobby, and plays in repertory on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

The Sunday silent film series is hosted by Dr. Hugo Munsterberg. On July 27, Buster Keaton will be featured in "The General" in Parker Theatre at 8:30 p.m.

The Wednesday evening concerts will include vocal and instrumental ensemble works. On July 23 there will be a concert of coloratura works with Constance Jessup and Barbara Hardgrave, sopranos. The Camerata Chorale, conducted by Lee H. Pritchard, will perform on July 30; light classical choral music will be featured, including a scene from Carousell. On August 6th, Barbara Hardgrave and Robert Casper will sing popular classics and selections from Broadway's best. Concerts will be in Parker Theatre; all will begin at 8:30.

Annual Fair

The Katsbaan Ladies Aid will hold an annual Antique Flea Market and Fair Wednesday, July 30 on the church grounds from 2 p.m. until dark.

Area antique dealers will be present to sell and display. Other features of the fair include a miscellaneous booth, fish pond, fancy article and apron table, food table and refreshments.

A baked ham supper will be served at 5, 6 and 7 p.m. Reservations may be made with Mrs. William Fiero and Mrs. Fred Eiveleit, both of Saugerties.

Arts, Crafts Show

The New Paltz Art Association announces its annual Arts and Crafts Show and Sale to be held in conjunction with the Ulster County Fair. The show, scheduled for one day only on Sunday, Aug. 10 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., is open to all interested artists and craftsmen. Set up time is 9 a.m., with judging of all entries set for 1:30 to 2 p.m. Awards will be given.

Citizen Wants to Pay Up and Die Clean

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to know if the U.S. government has what they call a "conscience place" where a person can go and pay the government what he has cheated them out of. If so, where is it? I want to die clean.

WANT TO REPENT

DEAR WANTS: There is no one place. If you cheated on your income tax, write to the Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D.C. with a note of explanation. If you've cheated on something else, send your remittance to any U.S. Treasury office with a note, and they will channel it to the proper place. (P.S. In the meantime pray. You know how slow the mails are)

"Trapped," the young woman whose husband beat her and kept her a prisoner in her home with no money of her own. You told her to go to a family service agency for help. How could she get there? she doesn't drive.

My husband also kept me a prisoner, and I didn't drive. He never allowed me to have any friends, never gave me a penny for anything and wouldn't even let me go to church. He'd hit me when I complained.

When I threatened divorce, he said nobody else would have me. I had two children and no training for a job, so I put up with it for six years.

I finally started to talk with my minister on the phone. He told me that God didn't intend for marriage to be a test of any body's endurance. He advised me to give my husband a time limit to seek help, and if he refused, to leave him with no regrets.

I took my minister's advice. My husband laughed in my face, told me no other man would have me and slapped me and the children around. Finally, I left.

I stayed with my parents for six months while I found a job and a place of my own. For two years I lived alone and found that I had an inner strength and a faith in God I didn't know was there.

I joined "Parents Without Partners" and dated when I could. I stayed with the church and sang in the choir. Then one night at choir rehearsal a young man who had recently returned from the military service walked in. I soon found out he was single.

To make along story short, we have been married three years and now have a child of our own. I couldn't be happier.

Please print this, Abby. If it gives one woman the courage to gather up her self-respect and leave a situation that's as hopeless as mine was, it will be worth it.

Do-It-Yourself Pottery Open House

A do-it-yourself pottery open house will take place Sunday, July 27 from noon until dark at the Garrison Art Center. A special Raku firing will be going on throughout the day. Visitors will be able to purchase a bisque ware pot, glaze it themselves and watch it being fired before their very eyes. Raku pots were originally used in the Japanese tea ceremony and were glazed in many lustrous and brilliant colors. After 20 minutes in the kiln the Raku pot is finished and ready to go home.

In addition, finished works of the GAC's pottery instructor and his advanced students will be offered for sale.

The climax of the day comes at 6 p.m. when the Center's new 114 cubic foot cart-door kiln will be opened and finished ware will be sold still warm directly from the kiln.

Proceeds of this event will benefit the Garrison Art Center, a non-profit, educational organization.

Benedictine Nun Celebrates Golden Jubilee

Sister Adelaide Wiederhold, a native of Germany, who entered the Benedictine community in 1924, recently celebrated her golden jubilee. Ben Slutsky Buried in Wawarsing

ELLENVILLE
Ben J. Slutsky, 64, an owner of one of Ulster County's most noted resort hotels, was buried Sunday, just two months after being released from the federal penitentiary where he served 10 months of a five-year term for income tax evasion.

Slutsky, a former vice chairman of the Ulster County Republican Party, died Saturday at Vassar Brothers Hospital, Poughkeepsie, where he had been admitted a week ago, having been stricken at the Nevele Country Club which he co-owned with his brother, Julius, who was also recently released from prison.

He succumbed to a liver ailment. Brief funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Congregation Ezrath Israel Synagogue followed by graveside prayers at Congregation Ezrath Israel Cemetery, Route 209, Wawarsing.

Slutsky, who was chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, until he was suspended by former Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in 1973, following his conviction of three counts of income tax evasion, was reportedly a millionaire. Ben and his brother, Julius, were both convicted for filing false income tax returns for the years 1965-67. Each reportedly evaded taxes on about a half million each in personal income.

Sources close to the family said that both brothers had been freed for weekend visits home during their stay at the federal penitentiary in Lexington, Ky.

Slutsky and his brother assumed the reins of the Nevele Country Club in Ellenville in 1958 after the death of their father, Joseph Y. Slutsky, who founded the hotel.

Slutsky's career as a GOP committeeman, which spanned 35 years, ended in 1972, when he relinquished his post as vice chairman when it was found that a conflict of interest existed in that he was also a member of the board of Monticello Raceway and chief stockholder of the track. State law prohibits a political office holder from holding stock or a director's post for a track with parimutuel betting.

The brothers were major stockholders of Monticello Raceway until they stepped down as track directors once the tax evasion charges were lodged. They also gave up their horse stables. Slutsky had been a delegate to the GOP National Convention in 1972.

The Slutsky's conviction followed a five-day jury trial in U.S. District Court in New York in 1973. They were found guilty of evading a total of $761,000 in federal income tax on an unreported income of $1.4 million for 1965-67. They were indicted in 1972 on charges of filing false partnerships and individual tax returns for the three years.

Slutsky is survived by his mother, Yetta; his widow, Marion; son, Charles; sister, Mrs. Lillian Regenbogen and his brother, Julius.

Newburgh Girl Injured in Collision

TOWN OF ROSENDALE
A 15-year-old Newburgh girl was seriously injured Sunday afternoon in a two-car collision on the New York State Thruway during a heavy rain-storm.

The girl, Jennie Gozza, was taken from the scene suffering from head and neck injuries by Doctor's Ambulance. She was admitted to the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital. No report on her condition was available.

According to Thruway troopers, Miss Gozza was injured in a crash between cars operated by Joan L. Kesner of Plainview and Charles TenEyck of Wappingers Falls during a cloudburst at mile post 86.5 southbound in the Town of Rosendale. Additional information was unavailable from police.

No tickets were issued in the crash.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

A 46-year-old Kingston man sustained minor injuries early Sunday in Kingston in a collision between his car and an Ulster County Sheriff's Department patrol car.

Robert Jones, of 2 Hilton Place, was treated and released at the Benedictine Hospital following the 4:20 a.m. crash at the intersection of Broadway and Henry Street.

According to Kingston Police, who investigated the crash, Jones was stopped at a traffic light when his car was struck by the patrol car operated by Sgt. David Hughes Sr. Hughes told police he was blinded by the lights of a oncoming auto.

No tickets were issued.

In the Village of Saugerties early today, police arrested a 28-year old Rome man on multiple charges after he allegedly broke down the door to an apartment at 110 Partition Street.

Arrested in the 3:45 a.m. incident was Robert E. Brown. He was charged with public intoxication, disorderly conduct, second degree criminal trespass and fourth degree criminal mischief.

Arraigned before Town Justice Timothy Murphy, Brown was jailed in lieu of $1,000 bail pending further court proceedings.

According to police the incident happened at the apartment of Mrs. Doris Post, who they said did not know Brown.

In Liberty, a nine-year-old

Mamhasset boy drowned early Sunday at a state camp for the retarded, according to state police.

A Sullivan County coroner ruled the death of Timothy Draddy of 32 Papermill Road as accidental.

According to troopers, the boy apparently drowned between 3 and 6 a.m. in a swimming pool at Camp Catskill.

Regional Water Supply Meeting Set

KINGSTON
The Ulster County Environmental Management Council will sponsor a public informational meeting on July 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the surrogate's courtroom, county office building, on the Army Corps of Engineer's plans for regional water supply.

Last week it was learned that the Corps of Engineers is reviewing proposals to augment the water supply of New York City by establishing storage facilities on the Hudson River at West Park and Hyde Park.

According to Donald C. Bruyn, acting chairman of the county environmental group, the purpose of the July 30 meeting is for the Corps of Engineers to present the latest findings of the New York Metropolitan Area Water Supply Study which is part of the ongoing Northeastern United States Water Supply Study and to obtain feedback on the material presented.

Bruyn emphasized that the studies to be presented "are not final recommendations, but rather serve as the basis for discussion and reformulation."

Government officials, conservationists and other interested citizens have been invited.

Regional water supply has been a topic of keen public interest in Ulster County for the past five years, beginning with the formulation of the Southeastern New York Regional Water Supply Commission in 1970.

Former Assemblyman H. Clark Bell of Woodstock was vice chairman of that commission which recommended a regional water supply system to take over the upstate reservoirs now owned and controlled by New York City.

With Bell's defeat in 1974 and strong opposition from New York City, none of the commission's recommendations were implemented by the state legislature this term.

Free Lunch Policy Explained

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Central School District has announced details of its free lunch policy for children unable to pay the full price.

School officials have adopted the following family size and income scale to assist them in determining eligibility. For one-person families, $3,230; two persons, $4,240; three, $5,250; four, $6,260; five, $7,190; six, $8,110; seven, $8,950; eight, $9,750; nine, $10,550; and ten, $11,310. For each additional family member add $750.

Families falling within these scales, which provide for adjustment for uncontrollable financial hardships, are urged to apply for free lunches for their children by filling in the application forms sent home with children during the opening week of school.

The form is simple and easily filled out, and provision is included for foster children. Information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only to determine eligibility.

Building principals will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents dissatisfied with their rulings may appeal the decision to the hearing official Robert M. Moser, director of administrative services, at the Administration Building, Hill Street, Saugerties.

The policy provides there will be no identification of or discrimination against children unable to pay full costs of lunches, and no child will be discriminated against because of race, sex, color, or national origin.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school principal's office and in the office of the School Food Authority District Administrator for review by interested persons.

Sandra Knew All About The Wind

Trophy Time

Sandra Palmer holds up her trophy after winning the U.S. Women's Open Golf Tournament Sunday in Northfield, N.J. (UPI)

Two Straight Wins For Roger Maltbie

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Roger Maltbie postponed his first victory party and wound up with an extra $40,000 to apply towards a double celebration.

The 24-year-old first-year pro golfer decided to pay the Pleasant Valley Classic instead of going home after his first tour victory last week in the Quad-Cities Open. His dedication to his work paid off Sunday as he charged from four strokes back to win the $200,000 tournament by one stroke over Mac McLendon.

Maltbie said that after winning the Quad-Cities and a $15,000 paycheck: "I thought I would really like to go home (to Modesto, Calif.) and party for a few days. That would be the fun thing to do. But I decided I was a golf pro and I pride myself on that."

"So the best thing to do was get back on the grounds and go play the next tournament."

Maltbie needed two rounds to get into the swing of the Pleasant Valley tournament. He started with a one-over-par 72, then shot 71 the following day to lag eight strokes back of second-round leader Lee Elder.

In the third round, he carded the day's low score of 67, and clinched the tournament in the final round with a seven-birdie, two-bogey 66.

Winning the previous week gave Maltbie the confidence to play his final nine holes with abandon.

Trailing McLendon and Bud Allin by one stroke after 15 holes, Maltbie sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the par-three 16th, then hit a classic scrambling shot and holed a 15-foot putt to win the tournament on the tricky 17th double water hazard hole.

He had pulled his drive on the 441-yard, par-four into the high rough to the left of the fairway. "I was in a hole and could just as easily have put the shot in the lake," he said describing his 168-yard six-iron shot to the back of the green.

"Did I think of just punching the ball out and playing safe? When I go down to the wire, I'm not laying up, partner. When the money is on the line, I have to go out and win."

McLendon, playing "the best golf of my life," could have tied the match with a birdie on the final hole. McLendon's approach shot was on the apron, 40 feet before the hole to the right. But the putt — which represented an extra $17,200 — was a foot wide.

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Sandra Palmer learned to play golf in the wind only because she had to, and never was the education more valuable than Sunday.

In Texas, where the wind almost always whips across golf courses on the plains, Miss Palmer learned what happens when you hit high shots into howling gales.

She learned to hit the ball low and keep it out of the wind when possible, what Hollis Stacy, one of the younger members of the LPGA tour, refers to as "good course management."

Sunday, Miss Palmer managed better than anyone in winds that often exceeded 30 miles per hour, shot an evenpar 72 and satisfied a longstanding ambition by winning the U.S. Women's Open golf championship by four strokes.

"I've always been a good wind player," said the 34-year-old Miss Palmer, a North Texas State homecoming queen before she turned pro a dozen years ago.

"I knew today that the wind would be tough for me, but I also knew it would be tough for everyone else, too."

The wind was tough all weekend at the Atlantic City Country Club, a 6,165-yard, par72 course that lays just a few miles inland and receives constant ocean breezes. But it was at its toughest Sunday, and so was Miss Palmer.

Tied with two others at the start of the day, she broke the deadlock by sinking a birdie putt at the fourth hole and then she steadily pulled away as her opponents struggled in the wind.

With four pars and four bogeys on the final day, Sandra finished 72 holes at 295, seven over, and earned the winner's share of $8,044.77, an odd figure because only 42 of a possible 50 pros qualified for the final two rounds.

Nancy Lopez, an 18-year-old amateur who captured the crowd if not the championship, was one of three players who tied for second at one.

299 after she bogeyed the 72nd hole. The others at that figure were JoAnne Carner, the 1971 champion, and Sandra Post, the 1968 LPGA champion.

It was the second victory of 1975 for Miss Palmer, the LPGA's leading moneywinner with almost $65,000, but she said it meant much more to her than her previous win, in the Colgate Winner's Circle tournament last April at Palm Springs, Calif., even though she earned $32,000 for that one.

"I think every player's goal is to win the U.S. Open," said Sandra, whose best previous finish was fourth in 1970. "You look up at the trophy and see names like Mickey Wright and Betsy Rawls. I never thought I was in that class."

Someone then asked her about the money.

"Today, I had no idea what the money was," she said. "When I won the Colgate, I knew it was $32,000."

Miss Lopez, who never was in contention for any of the money anyway, was satisfied after making the best showing by an amateur since Catherine Lacoste of France won in 1967.

"I did the best I could," she said. "I wasn't afraid to come out here and try and play my best."

All Wet

Rob Rominger, one of the competitors in the lower flights, dries off from Sunday's deluge at Wiltwyck Golf Course. Rominger could play only three holes of his match while the key battle of the day, the Leon Randall-Dave Blakely championship fray, went just five holes.

Invitational Delayed

KINGSTON — The rubber match between Leon Randall and Dave Blakely will have to wait until Tuesday for a final resolution.

The torrential rains that drenched the Kingston area Sunday afternoon halted the Wiltwyck Invitational final between the old rivals after five holes, with Randall leading by a hole.

A steady crescendo of lightning, thunder and rain turned the course into a quagmire, forcing Tournament Chairman Frank Murray to halt play. Then after a two-hour wait, tournament play was called for the day.

Randall and Blakely will resume Tuesday at 8:30 a.m., with Randall holding a one-hole lead, as they tee off on the sixth hole.

The decision to stop play was made jointly by Murray and Greens Chairman Bob Davenport, when the steady downpour flooded the 17th green and parts of some other greens.

Play had been completed in several flights before the storm struck, but major flights remain unresolved.

The first flight final between George Cosenza of Wiltwyck and Ralph DeStefano of Dutchess resumes Wednesday at 1 p.m., with DeStefano leading by a hole.

Dan Gaffney of Twaalfskill and Robert Tremlett of The Granit resume their Beaten Eight finals of the Championship Flight on the 7th hole Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Neither Blakely nor Randall was at his sharpest form in the early holes of the 18-hole championship match. Both missed the first green in regulation and settled for bogey-5s.

Randall holed an eight-foot birdie putt on the par-5 second hole. Both were in trouble with their drives on the third hole. Blakely squared the match with a par-4 on the fourth hole, when Randall's drive left him without a clear shot to the green.

On the par-three 5th, Blakely overshot the green with an incredible 7-iron shot and chipped weakly on his second shot, Randall missed the green to the left but a superb chip shot drew a concession from Blakely and put him one-up as a tremendous thunderbolt almost shook the No. 5 green and sent everyone scurrying to the clubhouse.

Other flight final results:

Championship Flight (Beaten Eight)—Robert Tremlett, The Granit, defeated John Provenzano, Twaalfskill, 2 and 1.

Second Flight—Dick Davenport, Wiltwyck, defeated George Govern, Stamford, 3 and 2.

Third Flight—Dan Hickey, Dutchess, defeated Dr. Fred Holcomb, Jr., Wiltwyck, 8 and 6.

Fourth Flight—Jim Link, Woodstock, defeated Joe Hill, unattached, 4 and 3.

Fifth Flight—Marty Leibowitz, Wiltwyck, defeated Gerry Gruberg, Wiltwyck, 5 and 4.

Sixth Flight—Irv Zwilling, Wiltwyck, defeated Mike Grubick.

Seventh Flight—Dick Hajec, Woodstock, defeated Dick Little, Dutchess, 4 and 3.

Eighth Flight—S. Laidlaw, defeated Jay Bertha, default.

Ninth Flight—Jim Schlotzhauer, Wiltwyck, defeated Robert Friedman, Wiltwyck, 2 and 1.

Tenth Flight—Sam Pepper, Wiltwyck, defeated Dick Craig, Wiltwyck, 5 and 4.

Eleventh Flight—Rich Sickler, Wiltwyck, defeated Ed Decker, 1 up, 19 holes.

Vinnie Giles Captures Southern Amateur Title

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — British Amateur champion Vinny Giles carded a two-under 70 Sunday for a two-stroke victory in the Southern Amateur golf championship tournament at the Pinehurst Country Club.

"I don't really have as much desire to win because I have fulfilled most of my goals in golf," said Giles. "But I've always hated to lose, and somehow today I was able to reach down and grab something."

In a three-way tie for second were Stan Lee of Baton Rouge, La., Mike Taylor of Meridian, Miss., who both fired closing rounds of 72, and Phil Hancock of the University of Florida who had a 73 Sunday.

Third round leader Allan Pate of the University of Alabama quickly dropped from contention with a 79 and total of 296 over the 7,051-yard Pinehurst layout.

Giles, one of the few golfers to take both the British Amateur and the U.S. Amateur, won the 69th annual meet one over par at 289, after starting the day two strokes off the pace. It was the second Southern Amateur victory for the 32-year-old Walker Cup team member.

Field Set for MR-OTB Classic

SILK STOCKINGS
... Easy winner

MONTICELLO Post positions were to be drawn today for next Sunday's $300,000 Monticello-New York OTB Classic now that three elimination heats have produced the 10 New York-bred, three-year-old pacers eligible for the race.

The eliminations were held yesterday at Monticello's rain-slowed oval and produced no major surprises.

In the first elimination, Silk Stockings, the favorite to win the $150,000 first prize, was an easy victor by a length and a half over Momentum with JR Call also qualifying, only a length back.

Silk Stockings, off at 1-9, led the entire distance with a brief exception past the quarter pole when JR Call edged in front. Preston Burris Jr. drove Silk Stockings to her eighth straight win in 2:02 3/5, a time slowed by the wet track.

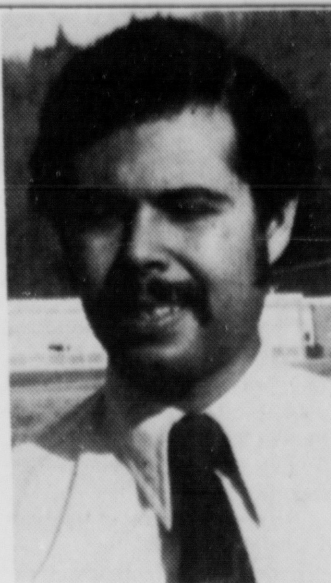

Golden Fulla, the fourth place horse, also qualified by finishing in 2:03. 1/5.

Under the Classic rules, the first three finishers in each of the eliminations and the fastest fourth place finisher advanced to next week's big race.

In the second elimination, Herve Filion toured wire-to-wire with Echo Brook Phil. Oned by the Echo Brook Farms of Red Hook, Echo Brook Phil won by two lengths over Say No More. Then came Tango Byrd. The winning time was 2:03. 4/5.

In the third elimination, Tarport Hap, with Del Miller in the sulky, won by a length and a half over Shirley's Beau with Spirit Happy third. Tarport Hap's time for the mile was 2:04 3/5.

A crowd of 7,080 was on hand at the Raceway for the eliminations.

RON VALLE, soccer coach at Onteora High School, has been awarded his Class C coaching license by the United States Soccer Federation. Also awarded licenses were Ron Chaisson, new Kingston High mentor (Class C), and Joel Tomson of Onteora (Class B).

Rain Cuts MHSA Schedule

KINGSTON The Mid-Hudson Soccer Association plays many of its games on Sunday. Or it at least tries to play on Sunday. But Sunday has been rainday the last three weeks and this week, you are no doubt aware, was no exception so once again the MHSA had to cut its slate.

"We are 16 games behind," says league president George Vizvary. "We may have to begin playing every day soon."

Three games were played Sunday. In the Yankee Division, Yallum's tripped Kingston Travel, 5-2, and the SAA Bluestones tied with SAA Iroquois, 1-1. In the National Division, Port Ewen AC and Rhinebeck Sportsmen also played to a 1-1 tie.

Vince Molinaro and Robert Jordan scored two goals apiece and Brian Caragher added another as Yallum's won its contest. David Douglas and Tony Amato were the marksmen for Kingston Travel.

Lou Venditti had Port Ewen's only tally while Lou Biscardo scored for Rhinebeck in its 1-1 tie.

Goal scorers in the SAA game were not reported.

Frenchman Wins Tour de France

PARIS (UPI) — Any Frenchman will tell you: Bernard Thevenet is the greatest thing to happen to this country since Napoleon.

For the first time in eight years, a Frenchman has won the Tour de France and, for the first time in history, beaten Eddy Merckx to do it.

Thevenet, 27, captured the world's premier cycling marathon Sunday before half a million cheering spectators on the Avenue des Champs Elysees in Paris. He thus ended the winning streak of Belgian world champion Eddy Merckx, who has won the Tour a record five times — in 1969, 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1974. (In 1973 he did not enter the race.)

Bernard Thevenet, affectionately known as "Nanard" to the estimated 15 million fans who lined the Tour route this year, has by virtue of his victory been catapulted into the spotlight as this country's national hero.

Cowboys Let 14 Go

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys released 14 rookie free agents and one veteran via waivers Sunday, paring the squad to more manageable proportions for the arrival later in the day of the balance of the veteran team members.

The entire roster, veterans and rookies, was to be in training camp by Sunday night with two-a-day practice sessions to resume on Monday. Forty-two rookies remain in camp. Forty-six veterans are on the roster.

Scanlon Farmed

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos optioned infielder Pat Scanlon to Memphis of the International League Sunday.

Right-handed pitcher Don Carrithers, who had been on the inactive list since June 15, was reactivated by the Expos.

 You've a tendency today to start more things than you can possibly finish. Chances are you'll leave many loose ends.

 It's a mistake today to bank too heavily on Lady Luck. You'll find her a very fickle lady.

Win At Bridge

Trump suit misplays easily

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Jim: "On many occasions we have discussed the slight extra chance that the real expert gives himself when it is there."
 Oswald: "In the ordinary bridge game South loses little or no time in finding a way to misplay the trump suit. He wins the club lead and promptly leads a low trump toward dummy. West follows with the seven and the king or jack is played. East shows out and some ten minutes later South has lost his two trump tricks."

Jim: "The ten minutes elapsed at the end is typical. He starts to think when the time for thinking is long past."

Oswald: "A little thought before leading to trick two would show South that his slam would be cold against anything but a 4-0 trump break. Further thought would show him that if East held all four trumps nothing could be done but that there was a way to handle four trumps in the West hand."

Oswald: "That way would be for South to play his queen of trumps at trick two. West could do no better than take his ace. Later on South would finesse twice against the ten and make his slam."

Soviets Watch Return of Soyuz

MOSCOW (UPI) — In one of the most dramatic live television spectacles ever seen here, millions of Soviet viewers watched Soyuz 19 return home safely in an explosion of dust today from the historic meeting in space with three Americans.

Commander Alexei Leonov, staggering slightly as he emerged from the toppled-over descent vehicle in Central Asia said: "It was difficult, very difficult.... we are a bit shaky due to tiredness and to happiness."

"During the flight we only slept about 15 hours."

Engineer Valeri Kubasov said: "This is a wonderful place... the last time the weather was more cold... It is a happy place of landing. I will remember it always."

The Soyuz descent module touched down at the end of its huge red and white parachute just six miles from the planned landing site near Arkalyk town in the prairie areas of Kazakhstan.

Leonov said, "There was some swaying. But all went according to schedule — we shook hands with our colleagues in space." He said he had expected greater gravity forces.

The entire landing operation was filmed live from helicopters, which showed other helicopters landing near the capsule and ground experts in their white suits racing to the ship.

Office workers broke from their jobs in Soviet cities and crowds stood outside television stores watching the event.

At one television set, watchers issued stifled shrieks as the descent ship landed, then realized that clouds shooting across the screen were only dust.

"I thought something was wrong," one girl said.

After the cosmonauts emerged from the hatch, hugged their comrades and talked briefly to Soviet newsmen, they were whisked off in separate helicopters to Arkalyk airport, there to be flown in separate planes to the Baikonur cosmodrome. It is regular practice to fly cosmonauts in separate transports after landings.

At least 1,000 Soviet experts on the ground, in helicopters and planes mustered for the scheduled 6:50 a.m. EDT touchdown in the dry prairie of Central Asia.

"All measures have been taken for the full safety of the crew at landing," said Vadim Kravitz, a shift chief at Moscow mission control center.

Kravitz said Soyuz commander Alexei Leonov and engineer Valeri Kubasov awoke at 12:40 a.m. EDT, ate breakfast and put on their pressurized suits at 2:20 a.m. for transfer to the descent vehicle.

Descent was scheduled to begin at 4:40 a.m.

"Descent is always one of the most intense parts of the flight," he said.

Weather in the area was good, but there could be dust, particularly from the helicopters which will accompany the module to its touchdown and will attempt to film the landing.

Scientists were expected to reach the capsule 10 minutes after touchdown. Experts told newsmen a half-second difference in the time of firing engines could mean a difference on the ground of 30 miles.

The ship carries an emergency parachute but this has never been used on previous flights.

Kravitz said both pilots were asked to take sedatives before sleeping. "It is ordinary to take a mild sedative before the last stage of the trip," he said. "The strain is similar to that on a test pilot. I do not recall any space flight when the men were not strained."

He said an electrocardiogram Sunday showed Leonov was "a bit tired" and he was requested to take the medicine. But it was not easy.

Ford, Congress Still Disagree On Oil Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress and President Ford are at loggerheads again over energy. The result could be whopping gasoline price increases by Labor Day.

Ford today was expected to veto legislation that would extend controls on the price of "old" oil through this year and roll back the price of "new" oil to $11.28 a barrel, about $2 under the current price.

For its part, Congress is expected Tuesday to disapprove Ford's proposed gradual decontrol of "old" oil over 30 months, a move the administration says eventually would raise gasoline prices seven cents a gallon. Other experts contend the increase could be as high as 11 cents.

In addition to vetoing the latest decontrol bill, Ford is ready to veto another bill in the works that would simply extend controls on "old" oil another six months so Congress can take its August vacation and then deal with its own energy program.

The current controls on "old" oil, which accounts for about 60 percent of U.S. production, expire Aug. 31. Oil companies then would be free to charge whatever the market would bear.

"Old" oil is that produced from wells in operation before 1973, and "new" oil is that either produced from newer wells or the amount produced from old wells over 1972 levels. "Old" oil is now controlled at $5.25 a barrel and "new" oil is not controlled at all.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford reached his veto decision at a Saturday morning meeting with his energy advisers.

"The President believes strongly that this piece of legislation is unacceptable," Nessen said.

He said Ford would prefer Congress instead approve his proposal for decontrolling domestic prices gradually, but, "realistically speaking...the outlook is not good" for approval of Ford's plan.

Nessen said that if Ford's plan is killed, "the next step as we see it would be for Congress to pass a simple six-month extension of the present controls." In that case, he said, Ford "will veto the simple six-month bill."

That would leave the current law controlling "old" oil prices free to expire Aug. 31 and create a possible consumer price explosion. Nessen said he had no figures on the effect of immediate decontrol of gasoline prices.

States and Cities In Fiscal Crisis crisis in the state's history," said Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, which has a $60 million deficit and a 12.6 percent unemployment rate.

"We have reached the bottom," said Sam Caldwell, Georgia's labor commissioner. "It is a mushy bottom and we are wobbling along it, but there are a few indications we are beginning to climb back out."

Caldwell's outlook on Georgia's economic situation — a bare-bones budget and an unemployment rate of 9.6 percent — matches many other states and cities trying to claw their way out of the recession.

New York City is just about broke. Thousands of public workers, including police, firemen and garbage men, have been fired as the city struggles to balance its $12 billion budget, the third largest in the Western Hemisphere.

Except for a few bright spots across the United States, the combination of inflation and recession still haunts government officials.

The key word is income. With lags in industry and millions out of work, states and cities are trying to fight inflation by using up available money, cut back basic services and fire public employees.

Some states haven't hit the bottom yet. New York Gov. Hugh Carey and state legislators are battling over new tax es. Carey claims the state faces a $600 million deficit by the end of the current fiscal year.

Texas is one exception to the cities and states headed for the poorhouse. The Lone Star State has a healthy surplus because of tax income from oil and gas. Houston follows Texas' good fortune, with a $12.5 million surplus from last year.

"We are virtually recession proof because Houston is still booming and because it has a diverse economy," said Mayor Fred Hofheinz. "We didn't put all our eggs in one basket."

David Liederman, chief secretary to Massachusetts Gov. Dukakis, said, "We've got the worst of both worlds... a declining economy and the need for new taxes. Now we have to cut state services just when they are needed the most."

Boston, operating on an austerity program for the past three years, has an employment rate of between 9 and 10 percent.

"There's not much chance of our being able to solve our own problem," said Budget Director Richard E. Wall. "If the economy improves greatly we're still going to need federal help."
